

Boost engagement. Streamline coverage. Control budgets.

Managing group insurance benefits is like trying to solve an equation with continuously evolving variables. FJA's Product Machine Platform provides an easier way to build, configure and manage complex group insurance products. Leverage automations, integrations and a user-friendly interface to control costs and maintain compliance while offering the benefit options needed to support a healthy and engaged workforce.

With FJA's cloud-enabled, modular platform, you can:

- Engineer products with easy-to-use table structure.
- Manage product portfolio and lifecycle with complementary product rules and guardrails.
- Utilize flexible APIs to provide product data from centralized repository.
- Leverage version control for full traceability and auditing.
- Track all activities across the platform using configurable workflows.
- Leverage a pricing sandbox to see the impact of different proposed rates, even with different classes and age levels.
- Manage both new opportunities and renewals.

Group Insurance Products with Adaptability Baked In

Group insurance products are under constant pressure from evolving state and federal regulations, emerging workplace trends, rising costs, and emerging technologies. Even renewals can require complex changes across a number of products, and pulling information from multiple sources can introduce errors and eat up time.

Thanks to FJA's configurable solutions, it's easy to update plans while ensuring detailed auditing and traceability of all updates and changes, APIs streamline processes with auto-fill options, and new technologies are integrated as they develop.

Ideal for:

- Fully funded, self-funded or level-funded group health insurance
- Other group and voluntary products like life and disability and supplemental
